EXEMPTION

Application No. A200/2004

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to Section 83 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 (the Act) by the State of Victoria (Department of Education and Training) for St Albans Secondary College (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ one male person to the position of integration aide at St Albans Secondary College.

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from Sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ a male person to the position of integration aide at St Albans Secondary College.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted that it has previously granted an exemption of this kind to the applicant to enable it to properly cater for the needs of specific students with disabilities within its Individual Needs Program. In this case, a male integration aide is needed specifically to work with a male student with special needs and difficult behaviours which make it inappropriate for him to be assisted by a female integration aide.

The Tribunal grants an exemption from the operation of Sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ a male person as integration aide at St Albans Secondary College.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 8 July 2007.

EXEMPTION

Application No. A255/2004

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to s. 83 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 (the Act) by the Family and Individual Support Unit, Department of Human Services (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ persons of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander background to the positions of Statewide Coordinator and Regional Indigenous Family Violence Workers as part of its Indigenous Family Violence Strategy.

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from Sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ persons of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander background to the positions referred to above.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted the desirability of persons of indigenous background filling the positions designed to assist indigenous communities as part of the applicant's Indigenous Family Violence Strategy.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of Sections 13, 100 and 194 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ persons of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander background as Statewide Coordinator and Regional Indigenous Family Violence Workers.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 8 July 2007.

EXEMPTION

Application No. A201/2004

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal (the Tribunal) has considered an application, pursuant to Section 83 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 (the Act), by WiN Support Services Inc (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ from time to time staff members of a particular gender for services operated by the applicant for people with a disability, the aged and their families and carers.

Upon reading the material submitted in support of the application, including the affidavit of Susan Molloy, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from Sections 13, 42, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ from time to time staff members of a particular gender for services operated by the applicant for people with a disability, the aged and their families and carers.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- the applicant is a government funded not for profit organisation which provides services to people with a disability, the aged and their families and/or carers;
- the applicant provides personal and home care services to clients from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds under a number of programs, which may be provided within the client's own home or at a workplace controlled by the applicant;
- the applicant must provide services to clients which are culturally appropriate and some clients for religious or other cultural reasons require services to be provided by a person of a particular sex; and
- the applicant by providing these services aims to empower people to live independently in the community.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption to the applicant from the operation of Sections 13, 42, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ from time to time staff members of a particular gender for services operated by the applicant for people with a disability, the aged and their families and carers.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 4 July 2007.

Application No. A220/2004

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal (the Tribunal) has considered an application, pursuant to Section 83 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 (the Act), by the Victorian Association for the Care and Resettlement of Offenders (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and engage women only as volunteers for the applicant's mentoring programme (the programme).

Upon reading the material submitted in support of the application, including the affidavit of Andrea Lott, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from Sections 42, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise for and engage women only as volunteers for the applicant's mentoring programme (the programme).

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- the programme is a transitional volunteer support programme designed to provide personal support and assistance to women leaving the Victorian prison system;
- the programme aims to recruit, train and supervise women volunteers to act as mentors to women leaving prison and to provide them with appropriate social role models;
- research indicates that a significant number of women in prison have reported experiencing sexual abuse and domestic violence prior to their imprisonment and by the provision of women only volunteers any perceived safety concerns of the participants in the programme can be minimised.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption to the applicant from the operation of Sections 42, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise for and engage women only as volunteers for the applicant's mentoring programme (the programme).

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 11 July 2007.

EXEMPTION

Application No. A253/2004

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application, pursuant to Section 83 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995, by Care for you Pty Ltd. The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ carers of a specified gender or age or ethnic origin or with specified religious beliefs to assist people with disability in their homes and to give them other assistance.

Upon reading the material submitted in support of the application the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from Sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ carers of a specified gender or age or ethnic origin or with specified religious beliefs to assist people with disability in their homes and to give them other assistance.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- the applicant is an organisation which provides care for people with disabilities in their homes and in sporting or recreational activities, social outings, rehabilitation, attendance for physiotherapy or hydrotherapy or other health care, and in activities concerned with skills development;
- this care involves often intimate contact with the client, such as assistance with showering, dressing and personal hygiene;

- the applicant wishes to be able to provide to their clients, carers of their choice. The clients are likely to be more comfortable and happier if such personal and intimate services are provided by carers with whom they feel at ease.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption to the applicant from the operation of Sections 13, 100 and 195 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ carers of a specified gender or age or ethnic origin or with specified religious beliefs to assist people with disability in their homes and to give them other assistance.

EXEMPTION

Application No. A184/2004

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to Section 83 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 by ADI Limited, ADI Munitions Pty Limited, ADI Advanced Systems Pty Limited, Thales Underwater Systems Pty Limited, and Thales Training and Simulation Pty Limited (the ADI Companies) for exemption from Sections 13, 14, 15, 100 and 195 of that Act. The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to engage in the specified conduct.

In this exemption "the specified conduct" means to discriminate on the ground of nationality or national origin against any member of the ADI company's workforce or anyone who applies to join that workforce in relation to defence-related projects undertaken or to be undertaken by those companies and to the extent required to enable those companies to comply with the law of the United States of America or their related contractual obligations. That conduct includes but is not limited to –

- a) requiring members or potential members of that workforce to give to an ADI company details of their place of birth, nationality or national origin to enable the company to determine whether those people are permitted by United States law to work on defence-related projects or to access technology, materials or information relating to those projects;
- b) identifying (by means of a badge, inclusion in a list or otherwise) those in that workforce whose nationality or national origin is included in those who are permitted, under the United States law, to work on defence-related projects or have access to related technology, materials or information, so as to distinguish them from those not so permitted;

- c) restricting access to information connected with defence-related projects that is regulated by United States law to particular members of that workforce, based on their nationality or national origin;
- d) rejecting applications to join that workforce in positions relating to defence-related projects regulated by United States law based on nationality or national origin;
- e) transferring members of that workforce from defence-related projects regulated by the United States law on the basis that, because of their nationality or national origin, that law does not permit them to work on those projects, whether that transfer takes into account existing or changed nationality or national origin;
- f) providing to companies that transfer technology or materials regulated by United States law to an ADI company details of the nationality or national origin of those in the ADI companies' workforce who will have access to that material;
- g) providing to companies who use defence-related material regulated by United States law at their facilities details of the nationality or national origin of those in the ADI companies' workforce who will attend those facilities.

Upon reading the material submitted in support of the application and upon hearing submissions from Mr Julian Riekert, Solicitor and Mr Andrew McKibbin, Commercial Manager, and for the Reasons for Decision given by the Tribunal on 5 July 2004, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from Sections 13, 14, 15, 100 and 195 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the specified conduct.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption to the applicant from the operation of Sections 13, 14, 15, 100 and 195 of the Equal Opportunity Act 1995 to enable the applicant to engage in the specified conduct.

The exemption is subject to the following conditions –

- (1) If an ADI company to enable it to comply with a United States law or related contractual obligation concerning a defence-related project, moves a member of its workforce from one project to another, it must take reasonable steps to explain to that person why the transfer has occurred and to avoid any race-based hostility that might result from the transfer.
- (2) Before rejecting an application to join a workforce of an ADI company to work on a defence-related project regulated by United States law on the basis of the person's nationality or national origin, and in circumstances where, but for the provisions of the United States law, the company would have accepted the application, the company must consider other reasonable and practicable alternatives to rejection such as the feasibility of employing the person in other work or of obtaining the necessary United States regulatory approvals.
- (3) Each ADI company must rely on this exemption only to the extent necessary to enable it to comply with its obligations under the United States law and its related contractual obligations, as in force from time to time.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 7 July 2007.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL

Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act 1986

ORDER REVOKING THE CODE OF PRACTICE FOR THE TETHERING OF ANIMALS AND MAKING THE CODE OF PRACTICE FOR THE TETHERING OF ANIMALS
(REVISION NUMBER 1)

The Governor in Council, on the recommendation of the Minister for Agriculture, under section 7(1) of the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act 1986 –

- (a) revokes the Code of Practice for the Tethering of Animals made by the Governor in Council on 10 April 1990 and published in the Government Gazette on 19 September 1990 (pages 2810 and 2811); and
- (b) makes the attached Code of Practice for the Tethering of Animals (Revision Number 1).

Dated 9 December 2003

Responsible Minister:

BOB CAMERON

Minister for Agriculture

SUDHA KASYNATHAN
Acting Clerk of the Executive Council

CODE OF PRACTICE FOR THE TETHERING OF ANIMALS
(REVISION NUMBER 1)

1 INTRODUCTION

For the purposes of this Code, tethering is defined as the securing of an animal to an anchor point to confine it to a desired area. It is used to prevent animals straying in the owner's absence (eg. dogs) or to allow animals to graze unfenced pasture (eg. sheep and goats). Tethering should not be confused with short-term tying up or with hobbling. Tethering is regarded as a temporary method of restraint that is not suitable for long-term confinement.

Tethering of animals exposes them to increased risk of stress, injury or death. In particular, tethered animals may be:

- unable to evade predators
- unable to obtain shelter from climatic extremes
- unable to obtain sufficient exercise
- isolated from their companions
- exposed to environmental hazards, such as road traffic.

For these reasons, other confinement methods appropriate for the species should be sought. Tethering of animals requires a high standard of animal husbandry and exceptional care, including regular inspections.

This Code has been developed to assist people to tether animals correctly when circumstances make it a necessary method of confining and protecting animals.

The Code specifies the requirements for tethering dogs, sheep, goats, cattle, donkeys and horses. Birds and cats must not be tethered under any circumstances. The restraint of sows by neck tethers is considered an unacceptable practice. This Code does not refer to exotic wildlife and other animals on exhibition, for example circus animals.

Animals should never be tethered in conditions where they are vulnerable to heatwaves, severe cold or driving rain.

2 GENERAL REQUIREMENTS

2.1 Site selection

A suitable tethering site should:

- be reasonably flat (steep sites are unsuitable)
- have an area of shade provided in hot weather and if no natural protection is available, some form of shelter should be provided in windy or wet weather
- be clear of obstructions that may cause the tether to become entangled or cause injury to the animal. An animal can be choked when the tether becomes entangled or can be hung when the animal jumps over a fence or other obstacles.

A suitable tethering site should not:

- be rocky
- prone to flooding
- waterlogged
- cross a footpath or be close to any road where there is fast moving traffic. The proximity of people or vehicles should not cause animals to take fright. Tethers should not allow the animal to stand within two body lengths of a road.

2.2 Type of tether

There are two basic types of tether:

1. Fixed tether – the anchor point is fixed.
2. Running tether – the anchor point can move freely along a wire.

For both types of tether an appropriate neck band or head collar should be fitted to the animal. Tethering by the leg or foot is unacceptable. The collar should be fitted with a swivel to which the tether is attached. The other end of the tether should be firmly attached via a swivel to:

For a centre fixed anchor point

- an appropriate fixed anchor point, such as a steel spike or stake driven to ground level, which allows 360 degrees of movement at ground level. The anchor point must allow the animal to cover the area without tangling. An additional swivel halfway along the length of the tether may help to keep it tangle-free.

For a running tether

- a strong wire which should be firmly secured at either end to trees, fences or posts but must have stops at either end to ensure that the running tether cannot become entangled or injure the animal.

Metal chain is an acceptable material for a tether. Chain provides greater security than other materials. The chain should be of an appropriate weight and strength for the animal to be tethered. Chains for dogs would obviously be lighter than those used for cattle and should not be so heavy as to cause an animal a problem in moving. Rope, cord, baling twine and other similar materials are not considered to be suitable for tethering because they are likely to become twisted and cause entanglement, or fray and break.

Animals tied together rather than tethered to a fixed point

- Because of the risk of entanglement and consequent strangulation or death from hanging, animals must not be tied together unless under very close supervision in safe surroundings. Animals tied together must be of similar weight.

2.3 Training

Animals should not be tethered unless they are of placid temperament. All animals must be closely monitored when left alone on the tether for the first time. Some animals may adapt quickly and others may require a period of training. Training requires a gradual increase in the amount of time left alone on the tether.

2.4 Frequency of inspection

Tethered animals require greater supervision and owner vigilance than other animals. They should be inspected at least twice during daylight hours in each 24-hour period. This should be increased to three times, or preferably more, in very hot weather.

Collars and head collars should be regularly inspected to ensure they are properly fitted – they must never interfere with or constrict throat passages. They should be well maintained and regularly checked to ensure they are not causing injury or discomfort. Collars and head collars should be removed if wounds are apparent.

Tether chains, wires and anchor points should be inspected regularly for signs of wear.

2.5 Food and water

All animals must receive sufficient food containing adequate nutrients to meet their requirements for good health and vitality. Tethered grazing animals should receive supplementary feeding where pasture is not adequate.

Sufficient clean potable fresh water to meet the animal's physiological needs must be available at all times, for example in troughs or heavy containers, which are firmly fixed on the perimeter of the tether.

2.6 Duration of tethering

All animals should be taken off fixed tethers and exercised at least daily. The amount of exercise should be appropriate to the species and to the age, health, working status and breed of the individual animal.

3 SPECIFIC REQUIREMENTS

3.1 Dogs

- The site must provide a minimum tether radius of three metres allowing six metres of run.
- Dogs less than four months old should not be tethered.

- Bitches in season must not be tethered where entire males may have access.
- Bitches about to give birth must not be tethered.
- Tethered dogs must have ready access to a kennel, shed or other protection from the elements and for sleeping. The kennel should be of an appropriate size for the particular animal and must not cause a threat of entanglement.
- As a guide, working farm dogs should be let off tethers at least two hours per day during daylight hours. It is recommended that wherever possible all other dogs that are tethered should be released under supervision for 2 hours in every 12 hours.
- Dogs must not be tethered adjacent to a fence in a manner that places them at danger of death by hanging.

3.2 Sheep, goats, cattle, donkeys and horses

- The site must permit a minimum tether radius of at least six metres for sheep, goats, cattle and donkeys and nine metres for horses.
- The site should be well grassed and provide adequate grazing at all times, especially if grass is to be the sole source of food. Periodic inspection of the site should be made to ensure feed availability and suitability of site. It should be free from poisonous plants, shrubs and trees.
- Horses or donkeys less than two years old should not be tethered.
- Mares in season must not be tethered near stallions.
- Mares about to foal or with a foal must not be tethered.
- Stallions must not be tethered near any other horses.
- The temperament and exercise needs of cattle, goats and sheep are such that they should not be tethered if under six months of age. Young animals need more exercise than a tether would permit and they are likely to resist the tether and sustain injuries.
- Because of the risk of entanglement, animals must not be tied together unless under very close supervision in safe surroundings. For example, calves tied together for foster feeding. Animals tied together must be of similar weight.
