EXEMPTION

Application No. H57/2017

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to section 89 of the Equal Opportunity Act 2010 (the Act) by Metro Trains Melbourne Pty Ltd (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to target advertising and recruitment material for members of its Infrastructure Delivery Team to females and persons whose gender identity is female (female applicants) in order to attract more female applicants for those roles (the exempt conduct).

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, including an affidavit sworn by Benjamin Ellis George, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from section 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- The applicant offers employment in a range of positions. At present, the overall percentage of employed women is around 21%. The applicant wishes to increase that overall percentage to 50%. As at February 2017, the percentage of women employed in the applicant's Infrastructure Delivery Team was only 4.66%. Within that large team, as at February 2017, the Track Maintenance Delivery Team had only 3.6% women employees and the Electrical Networks Team had only 1.41%. The applicant wishes to design its advertising and recruitment campaign for the Infrastructure Delivery Team to provide a focus on female applicants. The applicant does not intend to reserve positions for female applicants only but rather seeks an exemption to allow it to attempt to increase the numbers of female applicants. There is no suggestion that men will be excluded from the advertising and recruitment material or be in any way limited as to their capacity to apply for roles.

- The Tribunal granted the applicant an exemption to engage in similar conduct in relation to train driver positions in 2011 and 2014. While the material available in 2014 indicated that there had been some increase in female applicants, it did not demonstrate that the use of advertising alone was likely to achieve an increase in the number of women in its workforce to 50%.
- No exception or current exemption already applies to the exempt conduct. I am not satisfied on the basis of the currently available evidence that the exempt conduct is a special measure under section 12 of the Act. Accordingly, in the absence of an exemption the exempt conduct would amount to prohibited discrimination.
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Charter). Arguably, this exemption limits the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of males or people whose gender identity is male, who may wish to receive information about roles within the Infrastructure Delivery Team. I am satisfied that, in the circumstances discussed above, the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of section 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 24 May 2022.

EXEMPTION

Application No. H68/2017

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to section 89 of the Equal Opportunity Act 2010 (the Act) by Women's Health Goulburn North East Inc (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to advertise for and employ only females in all roles in the organisation and to, from time to time, provide services to females only (the exempt conduct).

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, including the affidavit of Susan Reid, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from sections 16, 44, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

In granting this exemption the Tribunal noted:

- The applicant organisation provides services to women by offering skills training, support, advocacy and assistance to build networks. It also provides individual women with information and resources on all aspects of women's health via its specialist library. It refers women to agencies for particular needs. It also provides training, information and assistance with service improvement to service providers and planners. Finally it provides consultancy services on equity, gender and health including evaluation, planning and research. The applicant operates under a feminist framework and believes that much of its work is best done by women so as to best promote the interests of women and to ensure their voices are heard. Some of its research work involves speaking with women, who have suffered violence at the hands of men. The applicant works with family violence services in the region including working with community based organisations providing direct services to women and their children.
- On the evidence provided, I am satisfied that the services provided by the applicant direct to women who are seeking health and welfare information and referrals are special needs services under section 88 of the Act as they meet the special needs of its female clients. I am further satisfied that the exception contained in section 28 of the Act applies in relation to those direct service provision aspects of the exempt conduct. That is because I am satisfied that the services where staff have direct and significant contact with the applicant's clients can be most effectively provided by female staff. However, the evidence does not establish that the broader policy, research and consultancy services, particularly when offered to other organisations, can be provided most effectively by females. Where I am not satisfied that an exception applies to the services provided by the holder of each role within the applicant organisation but accept that it is preferable that those services be provided by women only, it is appropriate that an exemption be granted. It is also appropriate to ensure that an organisation established to provide the kinds of services set out above, is able to, when appropriate, limit its services to women only.

- In the absence of an exemption, aspects of the exempt conduct would amount to prohibited discrimination.
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (Charter). Arguably, this exemption limits the right to equality and in particular the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of males who would wish to be employed by the applicant or receive services from the applicant. I am satisfied that, in the circumstances discussed above, the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of sections 16, 44, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 24 May 2022.

Health Purchasing Policy Amendments

In accordance with section 131(b)(i) of the Health Services Act 1988 (the Act), notice is given of amendments to Health Purchasing Victoria's (HPV) Health Purchasing Policies, which were gazetted on 26 June 2014 and became effective on 26 June 2016.

These amendments will be effective from 25 May 2017 and replace the existing HPV Health Purchasing Policies gazetted on 26 June 2014. All Schedule 1 and 5 health services as listed under the Act are required to comply with these amended policies.

HPV has a responsibility to develop, implement and review policies and practices to ensure compliance and probity in procurement, and to support good procurement practices across the Victorian health sector.

The amendments to the HPV Health Purchasing Policies are designed to align to Victorian Government Purchasing Board (VGPB) Supply Policies and to implement areas for improvement that have been identified, including increased emphasis on the need for health services to ensure probity in their procurement activities and the confidentiality of commercially sensitive information.

The amendments to the HPV Health Purchasing Policies 1–5:

- implement changes to health service reporting requirements under the HPV Compliance Framework to ensure key HPV reporting requirements are clear and transparent;
- clarify the responsibilities of health services that on-sell HPV contracted products and services to other entities, reducing the risk of health service non-compliance to HPV collective agreements and improving the confidentiality of HPV and health service contract information;
- align the 'HPV Health Purchasing Policy 3. Market Approach' to the updated VGPB Supply Policies so that in addition to the existing requirement for health service to publish selection criteria, health services will now also be required to publish weightings as part of an invitation to supply;
- clarify and emphasise health services' responsibilities to ensure probity in procurement practice and to maintain the confidentiality of commercially sensitive information relating to HPV or health service contract information; and
- amend health service disclosure requirements in relation to procurement critical incidents and complaints, so that health services will now be required to maintain a register of each and report annually to their Board, rather than report annually in their health services' annual report of operations.

In addition, the amendments establish a schedule to the policies entitled 'Schedule to HPV Health Purchasing Policy 5. Collective Purchasing – HPV Mandated SPC and SEPC Contracts' to provide a transparent mechanism for HPV to mandate VGPB State Purchasing Contracts (SPCs) and Sole Entity Purchase Contracts (SEPC) where appropriate following an evaluation process. Updates to this schedule will be published in the Victoria Government Gazette.

These policy amendments have been approved by the HPV Board after a period of consultation with Victorian public hospitals and health services.

The full text of the amended policies may be viewed on the Health Purchasing Victoria website, www.hpv.org.au
