EXEMPTION

Application No. H294/2022

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal has considered an application pursuant to section 89 of the Equal Opportunity Act 2010 (the Act) by Women's Health East Inc (the applicant). The application for exemption is to enable the applicant to:

- advertise for and employ only persons who identify as women (referred to as 'women');
- restrict individual membership of Women's Health East to women only;
- advertise for and employ women of a specified race or ethnic origin, or whose first language is a specified language other than English, to work on specific projects targeted at groups of women of that race or ethnic origin or whose first language is that language; (the exempt conduct).

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, including the affidavit of Elly Taylor, Chief Executive Officer, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an exemption from sections 16, 18, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

In granting this exemption, the Tribunal noted:

- The applicant is a community-based health promotion organisation, and one of 12 specialist women's health services funded through the Victorian Government Women's Health Program. The organisation works in partnership with other health and community agencies in the eastern metropolitan region of Melbourne to address health inequities and disadvantage experienced by women.
- Working within a feminist framework, the applicant advocates on behalf of women within the health system. The applicant delivers health education and training on women's health issues and gender equity, and promotes access to appropriate services for women, with the aim of achieving better health, safety and wellbeing outcomes for women.

- The applicant has a responsibility to represent women in their region and considers the most credible and effective representatives of women's health needs and women's perspectives are women themselves, provided through an organisation run by and for women, with specialist knowledge of health inequalities and disadvantage and barriers experienced by women.
- Current programs and activities include Together with Equality and Respect: A strategy to prevent violence against women in Melbourne East; Sexual and Reproductive Health Strategic Reference Group; Gender Equity/Equality Training; Bi-cultural Health Programs; and public and professional seminars and training forums to further knowledge and strategies for addressing violence against women, women's sexual and reproductive health, gender equality, and other health and wellbeing issues affecting women.
- The applicant employs a total of 23 women. As a small organisation, all staff, including administrative and finance officers, are required to play an active and visible role in community events and campaigns which are focused on women's health and women's rights issues. All staff are required to share reception duties and all staff work as a team contributing across all areas of activity within the office environment. Women who contact the applicant often do so in circumstances where they are seeking support and referral in respect of sensitive matters. Women contact the applicant because they know they will feel safe and respected and able to seek advice and disclose deeply personal matters to someone they feel is more likely to understand their situation. They expect to be assisted by women given they are contacting a women's health organisation. Having women in all employment roles in the organisation enables flexibility while maintaining the integrity of the organisation as a women's health service, run by women for women.
- Individual membership of the applicant organisation is limited to women. Membership benefits and services include eligibility for election to the Board of Governance, eligibility to vote in general and annual meetings of the association; invitations to special events; opportunities to contribute to the applicant's advocacy and influence via social media; participation in consultations regarding women's health issues; and opportunities to influence public policy and achieve improved health outcomes for women.
- From time to time, the applicant also develops programs to be undertaken with and for groups of women from particular cultural backgrounds and/or non-English speaking backgrounds. The success of those programs depends on having project staff from the same cultural backgrounds and language groups, wherever possible. Currently the applicant employs a group of bi-cultural workers from the Chinese and Hakha Chin communities to deliver in-language health programs within their communities.
- The Victorian Equal Opportunity and Human Rights Commission was notified of the application and has indicated it does not seek leave to intervene.
- On the evidence, I am satisfied that some of the services provided by the applicant which are designed to meet the special needs of women are special needs services under section 88 of the Act. I am also satisfied that the exception contained in section 28 of the Act applies in relation to the employment positions that deliver those special needs services. That is because I am satisfied that those services designed to meet the special needs of women, can be provided most effectively by women. However, I am not satisfied that all the services and activities undertaken by the applicant, including some of the research, policy and training activities which are provided to a broad audience including people who do not identify as women, can be provided most effectively by women. Accordingly, the section 28 exception does not apply to all employment positions within the applicant organisation.
- The applicant was granted an exemption in similar terms in 2006, 2009, 2012 and 2017. In the absence of a further exemption, the exempt conduct would amount to prohibited discrimination.

- Given the size of the organisation, the special needs of some of its clients, and the flexible requirements of all its staff in relation to roles and client services and interactions, I accept the applicant's submissions that it is preferable that only women work in the organisation, and that its membership benefits and services be limited to women only. I also accept the applicant's submissions that, where the projects targeted at specific races or ethnic origins or specified language groups which do not come within section 88 or 12 exemptions due to their broader audience or training aims, it is still appropriate for those programs to be staffed by women of the specified race or ethnic origin or language group.
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (the Charter). I have considered the nature of the right, the importance of the purpose of the limitation, the nature and extent of the limitation, and the relationship between the limitation and its purpose, and any less restrictive means reasonably available to achieve the purpose the limitation seeks to achieve.
- This exemption limits the right to equality and, in particular, the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of people who do not identify as women, or people who do not identify as women from a particular race or ethnic origin, who wish to be employed by the applicant, or who would wish to receive membership benefits and services. I accept the importance of providing a safe, respectful and flexible environment where women seeking advice feel able to disclose deeply personal matters. I accept the applicant's clients expect to be assisted by women when contacting a women's health organisation, and that having women in all employment roles, and as members of the organisation, enables flexibility while maintaining the integrity of the organisation as a women's health service, run by women for women, in order to achieve better health, safety and wellbeing outcomes for women. I consider the exempt conduct is focused and directed to deliver this, and I accept there is no less restrictive means reasonably available to the applicant to achieve this. I note the exemption will not adversely affect anyone seeking employment or membership services from other organisations. On the evidence before me, I am satisfied that the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

- I am satisfied that, taking into account all relevant factors, the limit imposed by this exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an exemption from the operation of sections 16, 18, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 6 October 2027.

INTERIM EXEMPTION

Application No. H319/2022

The Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal is considering an application pursuant to section 89 of the Equal Opportunity Act 2010 (the Act) by Women's Health in the North Inc. (the applicant). The applicant was previously granted an exemption on 21 September 2017. That exemption expired on 27 September 2022. That exemption enabled the applicant to:

- employ only females and people whose gender identity is female (referred to as 'women') to work in the applicant organisation;
- employ only women of a specified race or ethnic origin, or whose first language is a specified language other than English, to work in the applicant organisation on specific projects targeted at groups of women of that race or ethnic origin or whose first language is that language;
- from time to time, provide services, including membership services, to women only; and
- advertise those matters. (the interim exempt conduct).

The applicant has requested the Tribunal grant an interim exemption to enable the applicant to continue to undertake the conduct noted above while the current exemption application is considered and concluded.

Upon reading the material filed in support of this application, including the affidavit of Susan Rosenhain, acting CEO, the Tribunal is satisfied that it is appropriate to grant an interim exemption from sections 16, 18, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to continue to engage in the interim exempt conduct while the current application is determined.

In granting this interim exemption, the Tribunal notes:

- The applicant is a women's health service for the Northern Metropolitan region of Melbourne. Its mission is to eliminate gender inequalities and improve the health, safety and wellbeing of women and gender diverse people.
- The applicant provides services including community and professional education, research and assessments, dissemination of information and advocacy. The applicant provides programs which engage with specific needs in the community. The applicant's priorities include programs addressing gendered violence prevention, family violence, sexual reproductive health, gender equity, health and wellbeing.
- The applicant was granted an exemption for similar conduct in 2009, 2012 and 2017.
- While I am satisfied that some of the services provided by the applicant are special needs services under section 88 of the Act, and the exception contained in section 28 of the Act applies in relation to staff positions tasked with the delivery of those special needs services, I am not satisfied that these exemptions apply to all activities and employment positions within the applicant's organisation. In the absence of an interim exemption, aspects of the interim exempt conduct would amount to prohibited discrimination. Nevertheless, given the previous exemptions granted to the applicant, the special needs services it provides, and the size and structure of the applicant organisation, I am satisfied that it is appropriate to allow the applicant to continue to operate as it has been under the most recent exemption while the current exemption application is processed.
- When making decisions about exemptions, the Tribunal is required to give proper consideration to relevant human rights as set out in the Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 (the Charter). This interim exemption limits the right to equality and in particular the right to equal and effective protection against discrimination of people who do not identify as women, or people who do not identify as women from a particular race or ethnic origin, who wish to be employed by the applicant, or who would wish to receive membership. I am satisfied that, in the circumstances discussed above, the limit imposed by this interim exemption is reasonable and justified under the Charter.

The Tribunal hereby grants an interim exemption from the operation of sections 16, 18, 107 and 182 of the Act to enable the applicant to engage in the interim exempt conduct.

This exemption is to remain in force from the day on which notice of the exemption is published in the Government Gazette until 23 November 2022.

I Gabrielle Williams, Minister for Treaty and First Peoples, pursuant to section 103(1) of the Aboriginal Heritage Act 2006 ('the Act') am satisfied that:

SECTION 2 – Protective measures to be taken

The following measures are required to be taken to protect Ghow Swamp Aboriginal Place, the subject of this declaration:

1. Construction or upgrade of infrastructure, ancillary services or works associated with the use of Ghow Swamp by the responsible water corporation as a water storage facility is prohibited within Ghow Swamp Aboriginal Place outside the footprint (at the date of this declaration) of existing water storage related infrastructure, ancillary services or works (which includes, but is not limited to, the existing footprint of the infrastructure, ancillary services and works identified in Map A).
2. The footprint (at the date of this declaration) of water channels within Ghow Swamp Aboriginal Place (which includes, but is not limited to, the existing footprint of the channels identified in Map B) must not be expanded or deepened. The operation and maintenance of such channels must only be undertaken by or on behalf of the responsible water corporation and in accordance with any requirements of the Aboriginal Heritage Act 2006.
3. Continued use and essential maintenance of an existing licensed water pump or irrigation outlet on Crown land and/or waters within Ghow Swamp Aboriginal Place by the licence holder is allowed; however, works associated with continued use, maintenance or replacement of an existing licensed water pump or irrigation outlet by or on behalf of the licence holder must be confined to the existing footprint (at the date of this declaration) of that water pump or irrigation outlet or its ancillary infrastructure. Works must not include the excavation of soil beyond the immediate suction line extraction point. Any works undertaken must accord with any conditions of a licence issued under the Water Act 1989 and any requirements of the Aboriginal Heritage Act 2006. Extension of an existing suction line beyond the existing footprint to the extent necessary to access water must not involve ground disturbing works. Vehicle access to the existing licensed water pump or irrigation outlet is allowed for maintenance or replacement works if there is no other reasonable alternative.
4. Establishment of any new transmission lines or other new services or works is prohibited on Crown land and/or waters within Ghow Swamp Aboriginal Place. Maintenance and/or upgrade to existing transmission lines or services on Crown land and/waters within Ghow Swamp Aboriginal Place is not permitted outside the existing footprint (at the date of this declaration) of that existing transmission line, service, or work (which includes, but is not limited to, the footprint of the transmission lines, services and works identified in Map C).

7. The boundaries between Crown and private land along the Ghow (Kow) Swamp foreshore are to be fenced as soon as practicable with a stock proof fence by or on behalf of the responsible public land manager. A neighboring private landowner or occupier is responsible for the maintenance of the section of the stockproof fence that separates their land from Crown land, unless an alternative maintenance agreement is in place with the public land manager. Where there is no Crown land foreshore the private landowner or occupier must prevent livestock from entering or remaining on Crown land and/waters within Ghow Swamp Aboriginal Place with stock proof fencing on the freehold property.
8. Gates may be installed, removed, or repositioned on the Crown and private land boundary within Ghow Swamp Aboriginal Place by or on behalf of the public land manager in consultation with the Registered Aboriginal Party(ies).

 - vii. agricultural activity and installation/storage/use of agricultural related infrastructure, materials and waste, vehicles, and machinery.
13. Measures 5, 11 and 12(i)(iv)(vi)(vii) do not apply to the following area of Crown land until such time as the Crown land boundaries are fenced as soon as practicable with a stock proof fence by or on behalf of the responsible public land manager:
 - the area of land comprising Crown Allotment 18B, Section A on Parish Plan 3378 within the Shire of Campaspe occurring immediately south of freehold allotment 11B, Section 6 on Parish Plan 2733, which does not extend east or west of this freehold allotment and is bounded by the water channel.
14. Exploration or mining, extraction or production of gas, petroleum, mineral, stone, and other substances is prohibited in Ghow Swamp Aboriginal Place.

15. None of the specified prohibitions and restrictions apply to:
